a year like no other

What didn't students and staff go through in 2020 and 2021? By the time the doors opened for the fall semester, the COVID pandemic had been around with us for six months. There was no vaccine yet, so to be safe, everyone in the building was going to stay six feet apart – and this meant that only half the students could fit into the building on any give day. Every other week, students in different cohorts would stay home and join their classes remotely through video conferencing apps like Zoom and Meet. With all of the best parts of school – the dances, the time with friends and classmates, the games and group work – what was left besides academic work in a strange new hybrid model? But the Warrior spirit was up to the task of getting through the year together, even if there were days where you just wanted to fall down and take a nap, wherever you happened to be.

nothing we can't handle

The list of things that were difficult about the 2020-2021 year is, well, a long one. Masks were not only unpleasant to wear, but wearing them meant you couldn't seen anyone's face – your teacher talking, your classmates whispering. At home, students connecting remotely faced audio and video problems they had to troubleshoot. Athletes waited for new rules and timetables before they could begin their seasons. But once the details were ironed out, the schedules set, the technology problems solved, one thing was clear: this year was something we could face together. Following the frequent encouragement of "Let's go, Warriors!" from Principal Lucas, students pressed ahead and did what they had to do to excel in a year that presented challenges both unique and severe. Together, the Warriors of Tantasqua showed what it meant to have perseverance and courage.

NO EXCUSES. JUST RESULTS

the show must go on

The year began with uncertainty but ended with hope. By the time graduation was near, it was safe enough to have a prom outside, vaccinations were available, and it looked like maybe the summer months would bring some relief from all of the restrictions that came with the hybrid model. It was, in the end, a time for students to proudly take a bow after a year of performing well despite the odds. For the seniors, it looked like they'd be able to enjoy college in person; for underclassmen, it looked like they could expect to finish high school in a more normal way. With so much hard work behind them, the year ended with joy and relief and a profound sense of satisfaction – not to mention a couple of months to relax in the summer.

We were hooked from the start
when we noticed your kind

sometimes speak different languages,
but you saw so many places...
the things that you did! Oh, memories.
How we'll miss yesterday.
We are happy sad that you are being

Life has such possibilities and here's where you begin. It's the only life you

We know you'll be ASTONISHING!!
Just don't forget to always find your way home.
